CHAD'S CORNER

Into Your Hands

Last Sunday, we celebrated the powerful declaration of Jesus from the cross: "It is finished." The work was complete, the debt was paid, and the victory was won. But the story and the invitation doesn't stop there.

This morning, we conclude our series "The Road to Resurrection: Jesus' Final Words" with Jesus' final statement: "Father, into Your hands I commit My spirit." (Luke 23:46)

These words are not spoken in defeat, but in trust.

They remind us that Jesus didn't just show us how to die; He showed us how to live. In surrendering His spirit, Jesus models complete trust in the Father's plan and invites us to place our lives fully into His loving hands.

As we reflect on Jesus' journey to the cross and beyond, may we be encouraged to entrust every part of our lives to God's care. In times of uncertainty, pain, or fear, we can follow His example and find rest in the assurance that God is sovereign and faithful.

My prayer is that this series has renewed our commitment to live with that same trust each day and strengthened our confidence that the resurrection power that raised Jesus from the dead is still alive and at work in us.
